AncesTrim - a tool for trimming complex pedigrees

Julia Niskanen[1, 2, 3], Elina Salmela[1, 2, 3, 4], and Hannes Lohi[1, 2, 3]

[1]Department of Veterinary Biosciences, University of Helsinki, Helsinki, Finland
[2]Research Programs Unit, Molecular Neurology, University of Helsinki, Helsinki, Finland
[3]The Folkhälsan Institute of Genetics, Helsinki, Finland
[4]Department of Biosciences, University of Helsinki, Helsinki, Finland

3 January 2017

Summary

AncesTrim (Niskanen, Salmela, and Lohi 2017) is a Python tool for trimming complex pedigrees. Some pedigree data can have an inherently complicated structure with a high level of inbreeding, which makes visualization of such data difficult. AncesTrim reduces the complexity of pedigrees while preserving critical relatedness structures, allowing the pedigree to be displayed in a more efficient way.

References

Niskanen, J., E. Salmela, and H. Lohi. 2017. "AncesTrim - a Tool for Trimming Complex Pedigrees." https://github.com/JNisk/AncesTrim.